Synopsis

Three decades ago, Jackie Schut was considered one of the most prolific "baby sellers" in the country. She traveled all over the US, murdered women who had just borne babies, and then stole their infants. She is still imprisoned in the South. A lovely, vibrant woman in San Antonio was found dead in a vacant lot. Her mother, a popular local realtor, never stopped looking for her killer. Just months ago, a truly unlikely suspect was found many states away. At last, the seemingly impossible case to solve had answers no one ever considered. On Christmas Day three years ago, two grandparents, their son, his wife, their two small boys, their daughter, and her boyfriend gathered to celebrate the holiday. For reasons that are still almost impossible to contemplate, the sister and her boyfriend shot and killed everyone in the room. In these chilling true stories, Ann Rule reveals the dark underside of the American family unit - together and torn apart. Her unforgettable accounts will intrigue you, and once again prove the obvious: that Rule is "America’s best true-crime writer" (Kirkus Reviews).

Customer Reviews

I have read every Ann Rule book ever written even her Possession (her one and only novel - and I loved it - despite harsh reviews I thought it was original at its time -) anyway, I am rough on her because at one time she set the bar so high no one else could touch her - the past few books have been duds - one in particular and I feel sorry for any of the victims family involved but the strange case of Rhonda something or other - I cannot even remember the NAME of the book but it was just not good reading material at all I was very disappointed regardless - this book my bar has been set low because I feel Ann is getting to a point where her passion may be directed in other areas and it's reflected in her writing. This book however I enjoyed - it wasn't her best but the stories, for me anyway, I thought were pretty astonishing - I mean Good Lord the things people do to one another - it boggles the mind- one story about people so hateful they wanted to "kill any jews on the way" was a quote and I cannot imagine feeling that amount of hate for anyone - she brings to light a story about to kids who kill the boy's father and wife and it's just heartbreaking I cannot imagine losing a family member to such senseless violence - I wish my memory were better - I enjoy her compilations such as this one more so than when it's one story (take away the Dianne Downs and Ted Bundy ones they are hands down my favorite of all time) but I always remember one short story where this woman moves in with her husband and five children in a very lonely area - his brother comes and kills the husband and they live together as man and wife - he leaves and here is this woman with five kids and her husband buried right outside!!!
